TO RENEW FIGHT IN CONGRESS

Muscle Shoals Problem to Bob Up Early in Session.

CLASH IN OPINIONS EVIDENT

Many Solons Favor Government Operation, While Other Groups Advocate Sale of Plant to Private Interests—Violation of Naval Armament Treaty Alleged—No Action on the World Court Proposal Likely.

Washington, Nov. 26.—According to present plans, the senate will begin formal consideration on Dec. 3, two days after congress convenes, of plans for selling or leasing the Muscle Shoals project, with its great resources for the manufacture of cheap fertilizer.

Because of the clash in opinions between those favoring government operation and various groups advocating sale to private interests, an early decision is unlikely. The situation has been further complicated by the recent action of Henry Ford in withdrawing his offer.

To prevent a direct fight on the floor of the senate over government ownership, administration leaders sponsored a plan for recommitting the problem to the senate agriculture committee. A combination of southern senators, who favored Ford's offer, with the administration group will probably result in this action, and a further postponement of any final decision toward future operation of the project.

Three plans meanwhile remain before congress. These are: Creation of a government corporation to operate the plant, proposed by Senator Norris (Rep., Neb.), and recommended by a majority of the senate agriculture committee; recommendation of President Coolidge for creation of a federal commission to dispose of the project, and proposal of agricultural group opposing government ownership to turn the project over to Secretary of War Weeks for disposal to private interests upon terms to be ratified by congress.

A canvass of senators who have arrived for the opening of congress shows a determination to sidetrack the world court, although the American peace award committee has started a drive for action on the world court at the approaching session. There is little indication that action can be secured on this proposal by March 4. Members of the senate committee on foreign relations are understood to regard it as most improbable that the senate will act on the world court issue at the short session.

President Coolidge is expected to renew his recommendation for acceptance of the Harding-Hughes proposal. Well informed members of the senate and its foreign relations committee believe that practically nothing will be accomplished at the short session outside of the passage of the annual appropriation bills.

Congressional investigation into the manner in which Belgium, France, Japan and Italy have carried out the terms of the naval disarmament treaty may result from the scrapping of the American dreadnaught Washington. Critics of the treaty were said to be preparing a resolution authorizing such an investigation as a result of the charges made during the fight to save the Washington, that Great Britain's navy was more than 170,000 tons in excess of the disarmament limitations.

AVIATORS KILLED

Burned Bodies Are Found Under a Wrecked Airplane.

Topeka, Kan., Nov. 26.—The bodies of Captain D. W. Bedinger and Sergeant Irving Astol were found under a wrecked airplane near Junction City, Kan. They had been burned to death on the Fort Riley military reservation when their plane burst into flames shortly after they took off from Marshall field, the Fort Riley flying field. Observers heard the engine missing and then saw the plane burst into flames. It came down on the bank of the Kaw river, at the edge of the field. The body of Captain Bedinger was found beneath the skeleton of the frame and the body of Sergeant Astol was beside it, indicating that he had tried to jump.

Horses Cremated.

Middletown, O., Nov. 26.—Twenty horses were burned to death and two wagons and three automobiles were destroyed in a fire which consumed a barn occupied by the Sullivan brothers' Transfer company.

COMPERS RE-ELECTED

Labor Federation Delegates Leave For the Mexican Capital.

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 26.—The American Federation of Labor convention unanimously re-elected Samuel Compers, 74-year-old labor leader, to head the American labor movement for another year. He had no opposition.

His entire executive council was also returned to office. Atlantic City was selected as the 1925 convention city. Delegates to the convention, 325 in number, left here today to attend the inauguration of General P. Elias Calles, president-elect of Mexico, as guests of the Mexican government. Two special trains are carrying the delegates to the Mexican capital. Ahead of each train will be a pilot troop train; a special guard of 100 federal soldiers was assigned to each train, and in addition an armored car will be placed at the front and rear of both specials.

TO BE SENTENCED NEXT SATURDAY

Two More Convicted of Complicity in Mail Robbery.

Chicago, Nov. 26.—Federal Judge Adam C. Cliffe stated he would pronounce sentence Saturday on William J. Fahy, former postal inspector, and James Murray, Chicago politician, convicted of complicity in the $2,000,000 mail robbery at Rondout, Ill. Walter McComb, the third man on trial for the holdup of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul mail train, was acquitted. It was in his flat that several of the robbers, who later confessed, were arrested.

Six others, including Brent Glasscock, alleged leader of the holdup band; Herbert Holliday and four Newton brothers, all of whom pleaded guilty, will be sentenced with Fahy and Murray, it is expected.

Mrs. Avis Glasscock, wife of Brent Glasscock, who was arrested with him in Battle Creek, Mich., was freed. She had been held in bonds of $100,000, and it had been reported that she might be a witness against Murray and Fahy.

To Review Harrison Case.

Columbus, Nov. 26.—A review of the case of Dwight Harrison, sentenced to serve three years in the Ohio penitentiary for alleged misrepresentation in the sale of stock of the Phoenix Portland Cement company, was granted by the Ohio supreme court when it sustained a motion for leave to file a petition in error from the court of appeals from Franklin county. The Harrison brief avers that the lower court erred in its charge to the jury in that this charge failed to define the issues as disclosed by the evidence.

Says Bullet Caused Death.

Cincinnati, Nov. 26.—Samuel Kennett, 28, a stevedore, was found lying on the sidewalk under the pole he had been painting and rushed to the hospital, where he died of a skull fracture, so it was thought. Further investigation showed he had been shot through the head. The wound was concealed by the fracture and abrasion received in the fall. David W. Stephens, coroner, pronounced it a case of murder and stated the bullet caused death.

OHIO MOTOR BUS ACT ATTACKED

State Supreme Court to Pass Upon Its Validity.

MANY OHIO CITIES AFFECTED

Court Will Decide Whether the Act Regulating Motor Bus Traffic Is Superior to Home Rule Clause of the State Constitution—Trucking Clause of Ohio Motor License Law Upheld.

Columbus, Nov. 26.—The Ohio supreme court will decide whether the Freeman-Collister motor bus act, regulating motor bus traffic and commerce, is superior to the home rule clause of the constitution of Ohio.

The court admitted for review the case of Mayor Charles F. Scheible of Youngstown, on behalf of his city, against John H. Hogan of Youngstown, who represents the bus men of that city. In passing upon the Youngstown case the court will clear up the situation, which affects many Ohio cities.

In the Youngstown case a city ordinance conflicts with orders of the public utilities commission, made under the Freeman-Collister act. The city contends that under the home rule clause its ordinances affecting local problems should supersede the Freeman-Collister act, or what the commission may do under its provisions. The other side contends that the Freeman-Collister act affects statewide issues and should have preference over local ordinances.

Whether the provisions of the Freeman-Collister act regulating commercial auto traffic takes precedence over provisions of the co-operative marketing law will also be passed upon by the supreme court. The court consented to review the case of Melvin H. Hissom against Matthew B. Guran and Cancy Myers, all of Summit county. Hissom operates truck under the Freeman-Collister act, while Guran and Myers haul milk over the same route under contract with the Milk Producers' association, authorized by the co-operative law. Hissom, after failing to get injunctions against Guran and Myers in the lower courts, came to the supreme court.

The supreme court upheld the constitutionality of the horsepower and trucking clauses of the Ohio motor license law. Both tests of the auto license law came from Franklin county and were directed against Thad H. Brown as secretary of state. For some time truck owners had refused to buy 1924 licenses, pending the outcome of these cases. Recently, however, the supreme court refused to grant the truck owners an order restraining Brown from compelling them to take out their new tags.

TASK COMPLETED

National Budget Will Be Well Under $1,800,000,000.

Washington, Nov. 26.—The national budget for the next fiscal year, as completed at a conference between President Coolidge and Budget Director Lord, limits the ordinary expenditures of the government to a figure well under the $1,800,000,000 total fixed by President Coolidge in his last June message to government fiscal officers. Mr. Lord declined to reveal the precise total or discuss details of the budget, but he said previous expectations of the governmental economies had been more than realized. For one thing, the original estimates of the cost of the soldiers' bonus law had proved too high. The small number of applications for the insurance bonus permitted a reduction in the annual fund allowed for amortization purposes, while additional cuts were made in the estimated cost of administration of the bonus law.

Thousands Saw Maroons Win.

Chicago, Nov. 26.—It was announced here that more than 245,000 football fans witnessed the University of Chicago eleven in its eight-game fight to the Western conference championship, setting a new season attendance record for the Maroons. The previous high mark was in 1923, when 222,280 saw Coach Stagg's players in action. The Maroon's largest crowd was at Columbus, where 42,000 turned out. Receipts for the season will reach $500,000.

Three years ago, she said, they came to Ohio and lived in Utica, posing as sister and brother. Later he sent her to live in Newark, and without her knowledge married Miss Beatrice Armstrong of Utica, it is charged.

PRINTED INCOME TAX RETURNS

Two More Newspapers Indicted by Federal Grand Juries.

INDIVIDUALS CITED IN ONE CASE

Washington, Nov. 26.—Two more newspapers have been indicted by federal grand juries for alleged unlawful publication of income tax returns.

The newspapers are the New York Herald-Tribune and the Kansas City Journal-Post. The indictment in New York was obtained by John E. Joyce, assistant United States district attorney, at the request of Attorney General Stone. No individuals were named in the suit. Joyce said the proceedings were brought solely to test the legality of the publication of income tax returns, which he said occurred on Oct. 25. Individuals whose names were cited were not complainants, said Joyce. Their names were selected at random from general lists the Herald-Tribune published. An early trial was promised the publishers.

At Kansas City the indictment of Walter S. Dickey and Ralph Ellis, owner and managing editor of the Kansas City Journal-Post, was the only one of the three federal proceedings thus far initiated which involves individuals, in the effort to clear up, through court action, the conflicting provisions of the revenue act affecting publication of income tax returns.

The indictment of the New York Tribune company and that several days ago involving the Baltimore Daily Post, both named the publishing corporations themselves as defendants.

In each case the purpose has been to develop a different phase of the tax publication question to bring about a complete test of the law, which opens tax returns to public inspection in one section and prohibits their publication in another.

Five or six more indictments are expected in similar cases, Attorney General Stone said.

FEDERAL JUDGE ON TRIAL

House Subcommittee Opens Hearing in West Virginia.

Parkersburg, W. Va., Nov. 26.—A subcommittee of the house of representatives opened hearings here into impeachment charges against Federal Judge William E. Baker, which were filed before the house two years ago by District Attorney T. A. Brown for the Northern district of West Virginia, alleging 32 instances of unfitness for office. Baker, according to the charges preferred by Brown, falsified court records and defrauded the federal government; indulged in liquor to the point of intoxication and practiced alleged irregularities in the enforcement of prohibition.

Representative L. C. Dyer of Missouri is chairman of the committee. Other members are Representatives I. M. Foster, Ohio; J. B. Kurtz, Pennsylvania; A. J. Hickey, Indiana; A. J. Montague, Virginia; F. H. Dominick, South Carolina, and J. W. Wise, Georgia.

Chicago, Nov. 26.—Opening statements by counsel were made at the trial of Colonel Charles R. Forbes, former head of the veterans' bureau, and J. W. Thompson, St. Louis and Chicago contractor, on charges of defrauding the government on veterans' hospitalization contracts. A jury satisfactory to the defendants and to the government counsel was obtained, the defense challenging but five veniremen and the government two. Relationship to war veterans and opinions on war contracts were searchingly examined, but two world war veterans were accepted as jurors.

BUS LAW TO BE ENFORCED

State Utilities Commission Issues Order to Its Secretary.

Columbus, Nov. 26.—In a letter to Secretary James B. Dugan the state utilities commission ordered the rigid enforcement of the provisions of the Freeman-Collister motor transportation act. The letter directed Dugan, in turn, to request all county prosecutors and sheriffs to proceed with prosecution of all violators and illegal operators. Inspectors for the state utilities regulatory body were ordered to file affidavits against any parties found operating a motor transportation company and who have not obtained the proper certificate of convenience and necessity from the bus commission. Such prosecutions, if any, are to be made in the counties where the offenses are committed, it was ordered. The penalty for failure to comply with the law in respect to the commercial operation of motor vehicles, is a fine not to exceed $1,000 or imprisonment in the county jail of not more than one year, or both.

His head struck violently on the street, causing the skull fracture, which resulted in his death. Judge Coultrap is survived by his widow and six children.

KEEPING WELL

WHAT IS AN INFECTION

Editor of "HEALTH"

THERE are good and bad citizens in the invisible world. Just as there are good and bad men, wild dangerous animals and tame useful animals, so there are good and bad germs.

The good germs are those which help man do his work. The yeasts that raise the bread, the germs that sour the milk, the "bugs" that flavor the different kinds of cheese, the "mother" that turns cider to vinegar, the germs that sweeten the soil—all these and many others are good germs.

The bad germs are those, which, when they grow in or on the human body, make some poison which harms the body and may kill it.

The diphtheria germ, which grows on the mucous membrane of the child's throat, just as mold grows on bread, makes a poison as it grows, which the child's throat absorbs. It is the poison the germ makes, and not the germ itself which kills the child.

The tuberculosis germ, which grows only in the dark and which dies in the sunlight in a few minutes, is breathed into the lungs, where, in growing, it forms a little cheesy lump, which softens and breaks down, forming a little hole or cavity in the lung. Tuberculosis of the lung was called "consumption" because the lung was literally consumed.

What is an "infection" and what happens when a cut place in the skin becomes infected?

When the skin is cut, the blood oozes out of the torn blood vessels. If kept clean and let alone, the blood thickens and hardens, forming an airtight scab over the wound. Under this cover the torn fibers are brought together, the gap between the cut ends closed up by the white blood corpuscles, the repair men of the body, and, as we say, healing takes place. The scab shrinks, dries up and falls off leaving a little red spot, which later becomes white and which forms a scar.

But suppose some one of the four or five germs which are called "pus germs" get into the wound. What happens then? The blood is exactly the kind of ground on which they grow best. They begin to grow, just like yeast germs in warm dough. They break down the skin and flesh around the wound, to form pus or matter. The wound becomes red, swollen, hot and painful. The germs may get into the lymphatics and be carried to the nearest glands, where they form abscesses. They may get into the blood and be carried all over the body, causing blood poisoning. The poisons they produce in the wound are absorbed, causing general poisoning.

Paint any cut or wound with iodine. Tie it up, if necessary, with a clean, soft cloth. Don't put anything else on it. Keep it dry. Keep all kinds of dirt out of it. Nature will take care of it if you give her a fair chance. (© 1924, Western Newspaper Union)

Farmers Should Thrive

An average of $39,000,000 is spent each day in this country for food stuffs.

Growth of Human Body

Different parts of the body grow at different rates. The legs double in length by the end of the third year and triple by the end of the twelfth. When growth ceases they are five times as long as at birth. Before the age of ten the foot is shorter than the length of the head, at ten they are equal; after ten the foot is longer than the head.

Wisdom in Suffering

He is wise who at last sees in suffering only the light that it sheds on his soul; and whose eyes never rest on the shadow it casts upon those who have sent it towards him. And wiser still is the man to whom sorrow and joy not only bring increase of consciousness, but also the knowledge that something exists superior to consciousness even. — Maurice Maeterlinck.

Spirit Always Needed

Young men are apt to think themselves wise enough, as drunken men are to think themselves sober enough. They look upon spirit to be a much better thing than experience, which they call coldness. They are but half mistaken; for though spirit without experience is dangerous, experience without spirit is languid and ineffective. — Chesterfield.

Indomitable Doughboy

John H. Quinn, head of the American Legion, was recalling war memories at a bonus luncheon in San Francisco.

"A captain one winter day," he said, "was inspecting the trenches. The trenches were in a dreadful state. The doughboys waded round up to their knees in mud and icy water."

"The wading captain stopped beside a cheerful, red-faced doughboy who was shaving himself."

"Shaving, eh?" the captain said in a voice full of admiration and respect.

"Yes, sir," chuckled the doughboy, "and—if you don't mind, captain—you're standing in my shaving water." — Indianapolis News.

THANKSGIVING SERVICES.

In addition to the early morning Episcopal service and the evening Lutheran service a Union Thanksgiving service has been arranged by the churches at the United Brethren church at 9 o'clock Thursday morning. The sermon is to be preached by Rev. E. A. Tovey of the Evangelical church. A Thanksgiving offering will be received for the Home and Hospital according to the custom of former years, when the Union service was the custom. In accordance with our American tradition and the proclamation of the president it is fitting that we preserve the reality and purpose of the day.

All near-sighted persons don't wear glasses. New York farmers have almost exterminated blacksnakes. THE GOOD SAMARITAN

LESSON TEXT—Luke 10:25-37.
GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind, and thy neighbor as thyself—Luke 10:27.
PRIMARY TOPIC—The Story of a Good Samaritan.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Parable of the Good Samaritan.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Be a Good Neighbor.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Whose Neighbor Am I?

I. How to Inherit Eternal Life (vv. 25-28).

1. The Lawyer's Question (v. 25). "Lawyer" here means one versed in religious law, the Scriptures—not lawyer in our modern sense of that term. It would more nearly correspond to a theological professor. The lawyer's object was to trap Jesus—to induce Him to take such a stand as would weaken His influence as a teacher. He expected Jesus to set forth some new ceremonies which would conflict with or disparage the law.

2. Jesus' Question (v. 26). Though Jesus knew the motive of the lawyer he did not evade his question. He sent him to the law, the field which was familiar to him. He thus was robbed of his own weapon.

3. The Lawyer's Reply (v. 27). He made an intelligent answer declaring that the entire content of the law was embraced in love to God and man. This expresses the whole of human duty.

4. Jesus' Reply (v. 28). This straightforward answer went to the heart of the lawyer. Perfect love to God and man is truly the way of life. No man has yet had or can have such love. His sinful condition precludes its possibility. Man's failure to measure up to this requirement is his condemnation. The lawyer keenly felt this thrust. He was defeated on his own grounds and convicted of guilt.

II. Who Is My Neighbor? (vv. 29-37). This question reveals the insincerity of the lawyer. Christ's answer had reached his conscience, and now he seeks to escape the difficulty by asking a captious question. Lawyer-like he sought to get off by raising a question as to the meaning of words.

2. Jesus' Answer (vv. 30-37). This more than answered the lawyer's question. In the parable of the Good Samaritan He makes clear who is a neighbor, and also what it means to be a neighbor, or what loving a neighbor means. Christ's answer had a double meaning. He not only made clear who is my neighbor, but made it clear that the lawyer was not playing the neighbor. He thus was convicted of not having been a neighbor.

(1) Who is my neighbor? This destitute and wounded man left on the highway by the robbers is the man who needs a neighbor. My neighbor, therefore, is the one who needs my help, whether he lives next door or on the other side of the world. Those who have the Spirit of Christ can see their neighbors on every hand.

(2) What being a neighbor means. Our supreme concern should not be "Who is my neighbor?" but "Whose neighbor am I?" To be a neighbor is, (a) to be on the lookout for those in need of our help (v. 33). (b) To have compassion on the needy (v. 33). Christ's compassion was aroused as He came into contact with those who were suffering and in need. All those who have His nature will be likewise moved. (c) To give to those in need (v. 34). Many are willing to give money to help the poor and needy, but are unwilling to personally minister to them. Many times the personal touch is more important than the material aid. We should give ourselves as well as our money. (d) To bind up wounds (v. 34). (e) To set the helpless ones on our beasts while we walk (v. 34). This is proof that love is genuine. Christians will deny themselves in order to have something to give to those who have need. This kind of sympathy is greatly needed today. (f) To bring to the inn and take care of the unfortunate (v. 34). Genuine love does not leave its service incomplete. Much Christian service is spasmodic, helps and then leaves a man to take care of himself. (g) To give money (v. 35). It costs a good deal to be a neighbor. Love is the most expensive thing in the world. It cost God His only Son. It cost Christ His life. May we go and do likewise!

Losses and Gains

What earth calls our greatest losses are often our highest gains.

Tunic Is Popular Style of Season

Outfit Adapted to Tailored Mode as Well as to Evening Clothes

Whether it is part of an ensemble costume or is a separate garment, the tunic is unquestionably one of the most important fashion features of the present season, asserts a fashion writer in the Kansas City Star. And its vogue is not surprising, since its possibilities are infinite and it is confined to no special material or to any particular costume. One sees it adapted to the tailored mode as well as to the fashions for evening wear.

With the advent of cool days the tunic of kasha has made its appearance, and it is ideal for street wear. As a rule the foundation is made of black satin, but occasionally a few inches of velvet show below the hem of the tunic.

When velvet is employed it is also used as a trimming on the tunic. An interesting model to exploit this combination of materials is one that has a tunic of black kasha trimmed with narrow bands of French blue velvet and worn over a foundation slip bordered with velvet.

Beige and brown are shades which have a special affinity for each other and are especially effective when there is a contrast of texture as well as of color. A striking instance of the charm of these colors when combined is shown in an attractive model. A pinafore tunic of beige kasha opens over a slip of brown satin. Narrow bands of satin embroidered in gold trim the sleeves and pocket. With this is worn one of the new hats of brown satin simply trimmed with loops of ribbon.

At the moment school and college girls' fashions hold the center of the fashion stage and in their combination of practical qualities allied to an unobtrusive but youthful smartness they are appropriate to the years and to the status of their wearers.

Nothing has yet been designed that quite takes the place of a beautifully made, smartly cut frock of navy blue twill or serge whose simplicity is as artful as it is intriguing. This year there are a number of new versions of this old favorite, each one distinguished by details of marked individuality. Bits of bright color are cleverly introduced, tiny metal buttons are skillfully employed, a feminine daintiness is added by finishing neck and sleeves with collars and cuffs of lingerie and lace, and a boyish aspect is given by scarfs and ties of plaid or gayly striped silk.

Next to the navy blue frock in popularity comes the plaid dress, which seems destined for a decided vogue and which is especially adapted to the needs of the school and college girl.

Spanish Influence Is Feature of This Hat

Hints on Packing Away Clothes and Draperies

Summer clothes and house draperies should be stored clean and unstarched, for starch will cause the material to rot.

The best plan, after white garments or draperies are washed and well dried is to store them in a pillowcase or linen bag to keep them free from soil.

It is a question whether inexpensive and somewhat faded cotton frocks are worth keeping from one season to another. They might be cut down for rompers and overalls for the children.

No gown should be stored with lace collars the least bit soiled. Such lace will look far more soiled when brought to light again, and in the meantime the dirt seems to wear in.

Powdered magnesite or fuller's earth will often work wonders with soiled lace, but the substance should be allowed to remain two or three days before being brushed away.

If rugs are to be put away and replaced by heavier articles for the winter remember that no rug or carpet should ever be folded, but rolled.

The marks made by folding carpets and rugs, instead of carefully rolling them, take a long time to disappear, and they often become permanent.

Shawl Collars

Shawl collars of fur are very effectively used on the new coats, and are frequently coupled with mousquetaire cuffs of fur.

Made It Unanimous. The city council of a town where earthquakes sometimes occur was in session. There had already been two or three slight disturbances that day, and soon after the members had assembled there came a shock that was decidedly severe. One of the members immediately moved that the council adjourn. The next time the assembly met the clerk read the minutes of the previous meeting and concluded, "On motion of Mr. Bernheim the council adjourned." "Are there any objections or changes to be made in the minutes?" asked the mayor. At that a lanky member who was sitting in the rear of the room stood up. "I move," he said, "that the concluding minute be amended to read, 'On motion of the city hall the council adjourned.'"

Curious Scales Used in Ecuador. A short stick carrying a suspended pan at each end and held up by a cord about the center is the common trade balance of Ecuador. The weight is a rock about the size of a man's fist, and while no two of the stones are ever the same size, the merchant is always prepared to pledge his honor that the stone weighs a full and exact pound. The price for a commodity is almost never fixed, and as the Ecuadorian is always prepared and expects to come down somewhat from his first price, it speaks worlds for his optimism that he invariably tries to get more. The bargaining does not actually begin until you have disregarded the first figure and asked, "What is the last price?"

OFFICIALS
INSTALLED

Mrs. Ella Finkel, Retiring Secretary, Was Given Beautiful Present by Worthy Matron - Mrs. Edith Monroe Presented Past Matron's Jewel and Dish.

The annual installation of the officers of Circleville chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, took place Tuesday evening in the chapter rooms in the Masonic temple and a large number of members and visitors were present. The installing officer was Mrs. Amy Cromley Nickerson, who was recently selected as grand Martha of the grand chapter of Ohio, and she was assisted by Mrs. Lura Seeds, as marshal.

The ceremony was performed in an impressive manner and the following were installed and instructed in the duties and responsibilities of the various offices: Worthy Matron, Irma Stevenson; worthy patron, Wilson F. Cellar; assistant matron, Sarah Trout; secretary, Lucy B. Price; treasurer, Essie Reber; conductress, Muriel Reichelderfer; associate conductress, Essie Schlear; treasurer, Mae B. Tolbert; warder, Maude Hedges; organist, Minnie Weaver; Ada, Marie Hamilton; Ruth, Mary L. Johnson; Esther, Eva Bentley; Martha, Esther Betts; Electa, Elizabeth Dornisfe; sentinel, Frank E. Barnhill.

The report of the auditing committee showed that the books and accounts of the secretary are in good shape, are correct and also show a substantial increase in the balance in the treasury, notwithstanding the fact that many betterments have been added to the chapter equipment.

Just prior to the installation ceremony the worthy matron, Mrs. Edith Monroe, bestowed handsome gifts upon the retiring secretary, Mrs. Ella Finkel, and on Homer Walters and C. C. Chappelle, past patrons. In making the presentation to Mrs. Finkel, in well chosen words, Mrs. Monroe recalled the nine years of faithful, unselfish service on the part of the former and expressed her pleasure in being permitted to recognize her worth and to give her a token of hearty appreciation. To this Mrs. Finkel responded with much feeling and thanked the donor for the beautiful gift and officers and members for courtesies extended during her years of service.

Following the installation, the first act of the new worthy matron, Mrs. Irma Stevenson, was the presentation to the retiring worthy matron, Mrs. Monroe, of a past worthy matron's jewel, the gift of the chapter. Then, on behalf of the officers who served during the past year, she presented to the retiring chief officer a beautiful fruit dish and to both these presentations Mrs. Monroe expressed her pleasure in having the privilege of association with the officers and members of Circleville chapter and her heartfelt thanks for the material manifestation of their esteem.

At six o'clock an elegant banquet was served in the dining room and to this all did ample justice.

Visitors were present from Kingston, Portsmouth, Chillicothe, Williamsport and other chapters.

Lovely Lonely Island.

Christmas island, in the Indian ocean, is one of the several bits of land that lonely voyagers have come upon in the holiday season and have named accordingly. The island has been described by travelers, says a National Geographic society bulletin, as at once one of the loneliest and loveliest spots in the world. And its possession of tree-climbing crabs and a super-scented tree gives it a right to be classed as one of the queerest. The island, 12 miles long by nine miles broad, is in reality made up of the slopes and top of a huge mountain peak. Soundings show that if the waters of the ocean were drained away a rough pyramid 15,000 feet high would stand alone in a plain, the present island forming the last 1,000 feet of its slope.

AMUSEMENTS

It is one of the greatest of Ingram's pictures, worthy in every way of the man who produced "The Four Horsemen" and "Scaramouche" and superbly acted by a cast that includes Ramon Novarro and Alice Terry.

The picture was filmed in Algiers and Tunis and it affords the most convincing of all arguments why pictures should be screened on the exact locale of the story, instead of at Hollywood studios. For Mr. Ingram, in going to the east, has brought back with him to the screen all of the glamorous enchantment that has beckoned to travelers thru all the ages.

"The Arab" gives you the Orient in all of its wonderful color and exotic life; an authentic background for a drama that holds the spectators tense with excitement.

Islam Breaks Loose

Ramon Novarro appears in the title role, as an Arab guide who falls in love with an American missionary's daughter, played by Alice Terry. He learns of the Turkish plan to massacre the Christians, only after the children from the mission are being led into the desert to certain death. He goes to their rescue, but, when he gets them back to the mission, the fanatical Moslems, roused to fury by their leaders, break loose and attack the little Christian stronghold. Only a miracle can save them. But you must see the denouement for yourself. "The Arab" is a picture that nobody should miss. Successful some years ago on the stage, with Edgar Selwyn, who wrote it, in the title role, its effectiveness is tremendously enhanced on the screen.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

"How Can We Build for Christmas Business" Subject of Address.

Trent D. Sickles, Secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association, Gave Most Helpful Suggestions to Members—Render Good Service and Get Trade.

"How can we build for Christmas business?" was the subject of Trent D. Sickles, secretary of the Retail Merchants' association of Columbus, who spoke before the chamber of commerce Tuesday evening.

Christmas business cannot be built in a day said the speaker, contentment and inherent laziness are enemies of business. We put off necessary plumbing, painting and repairing we just don't do things until we are pushed to do it. The mission of a merchant, is to meet the material needs of mankind. There must be an awakening.

Customers prefer to deal in a well lighted store. Better lighting helps to build Christmas business. Use mellow, soft lights for show windows. Flood lighting is good, but don't use all white light. Use different shades as they make the window more attractive.

The live merchant takes an interest in public affairs and keeps up with the band wagon. If a holiday comes, dress your windows accordingly. The public notices these little things, and they want to come and deal with you. Every merchant should be active in community work. Your Pumpkin Show builds Christmas business. It means solidarity, among business men and it is one of your big assets, and don't think for a moment that it does not bring dollars into your town. You are envied by every town in this state and they would like to emulate your efforts along this line.

Paint up that front and keep your store spick and span, make the place inviting. Get acquainted, personally and thru advertising your wares.

Christmas seals are mighty good things, put one of these on every package you send out. It conveys the Christmas spirit, sort of atmosphere and it makes the customer think of the near approach of the holidays. Use Christmas symbols, trees, evergreens in your window decorations, poinsettia, as the Christmas flower, a figure of Santa Claus, a chimney or fireplace, a star, a lighted candle, a real Christmas scene, some kind of Christmas cheer, hang up a stocking. Put a little humanness in your decorations. Cultivate the children when they come into your store. They are making up their minds what they want and they will carry their ideas home. Don't overlook them.

Christmas business cannot be built in a day, it takes the year around. Good merchandise, good cheer and good friendship make the successful merchant. Render good service and you will get the trade.

Nelson's Dying Request Unheeded.

"Take care of my poor Lady Hamilton," gasped Lord Nelson dying. "Remember, I leave her and my daughter to my country." On the eve of the Battle of Trafalgar he wrote a last paragraph in his diary, recounting her services to England, and begging the nation's generosity to the woman of his heart. England, cold to his plea, paid no attention to the dying request of the hero of Trafalgar. An earldom, a great estate, and an hereditary annuity of $25,000 were given to a brother he disliked. Lady Hamilton, responsible for Nelson's going to sea after retirement, and winning, in 1805, a victory over the Franco-Spanish fleets that destroyed forever Napoleon's naval power, died ten years later in disgrace and penury. Yet, "Did I not share in his glory? Even the last fatal victory; it was I bade him go forth. Did he not call me brave Emma, and said, 'If there were more Emmas, there would be more Nelsons.'"

Rules Laid Down by Old Masters.

A Brazilian art scholar asserts he has discovered how the old masters of painting and sculpture worked. He has taken the pictures and shown, by drawing lines and angles on them, how the artists gave their compositions strictly mathematical foundations. Ancient Egyptian artists had a rule of proportions based on the length of the middle finger, the distance of which was contained nineteen times in the length of the whole body. Greek artists adopted these proportions until it was established that the face must be a tenth part and the head an eighth part of the total height of the body. The face was divided into three equal parts—from the roots of the hair to the root of the nose; from the root of the nose to its point, and from the end of the nose to the chin.

Majority and Plurality.

A candidate in an election receives a plurality of votes when he obtains more than any other candidate, and he receives a majority of votes when his total is more than all others. The plurality is thus the excess of votes received by any one candidate over those received by the candidate having the next highest number of votes, while the majority is the excess of votes received by the candidate having the highest number over those received by all the others together. Thus when a candidate for office, out of, say 10,000 votes, receive 4,000, and two other candidates receive respectively 3,500 and 2,500, the first is elected by a plurality, though he has received less than a majority of the whole vote, and he is said to have a plurality of 500 votes, the difference between 4,000 and 3,500.

KEEPING WELLBUILDING STRONG TEETH

Editor of "HEALTH"

IF YOU were building a brick wall, you'd see to it that plenty of lime went into the mortar that was to hold the brick together. You know that if the lime is lacking, the mortar will crumble, the brick will fall apart and the wall will fall down or buckle out of shape.

In building your child's body, there are two structures which must have plenty of lime if they are to be sound and strong, able to stand the strain and the wear of future years. These are the bones and the teeth.

If the child does not get enough lime in its food, its bones will be soft, spongy and easily bent. The child will grow up with bowlegs, contracted chest and curved spine. This disease, caused by lack of sufficient lime in the bones, is called rickets.

In all cases of rickets the teeth are soft and subject to decay. Even in children who do not develop rickets (that is, in whom the food has enough lime to supply the bones with what they need), unless there is enough lime for both bones and teeth, the teeth will be soft and will easily decay.

The child's first teeth, or milk teeth, as they are sometimes called, are made out of material taken from the mother's milk, so that if the child's first teeth are to be strong and healthy, the mother, both during pregnancy and while she is nursing her baby, must have food which contains plenty of lime, for her baby's bones and teeth. They are formed long before the first permanent tooth appears. In order to have strong, sound teeth, the child must have, from its birth until its permanent teeth are all developed, food which contains plenty of lime.

The best lime-containing food is milk. Children need more lime than grown people whose teeth and bones are hardened. A quart of milk a day is the least amount each child needs. Green vegetables, such as spinach, lettuce, cabbage and tomatoes, fruits, especially fresh and uncooked, eggs, one or two a day and cereals, especially rolled oats and wheat and whole wheat bread, will supply the lime needed for healthy, firm bones and hard, sound teeth.

Resigned Vice Presidency

Perhaps You Have Heard Them.

Harold had often heard the poem, "Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star." Last summer we visited Aunt Louise, who lived in the country. In the evening we would all sit on the porch, and, of course, hear all the night noises, such as frogs, crickets, etc. One evening Harold sat gazing intently at the sky for some time, then, suddenly looking at his mother, he exclaimed, "Mother, just hear the stars twinkle."—Chicago American.

A Theory That Was Proved

By H. IRVING KING

(Copyright.)

CAROLINE PENDERGAST had a theory and set out to prove it. Her theory was love at first sight. She was a sprightly young lady and was in the habit of falling in love with bewildering versatility. There was young Silas Watson. She was sure she was in love with Silas until she saw him wearing a horrible purple tie. Then there was Raymond Caruthers. Raymond was so perfectly correct in his attire, his manners were so polished, his black eyes so expressive that Caroline, when she was introduced to him, told herself that she had surely contracted a case of love at first sight. But when she knew him better and found out what outrageous grammar he used her love was swept away.

Then came into her ken Thomas Williams, the schoolmaster. He boarded with the Pendergasts. Farmer Pendergast lived near the village and was well to do. But he was a thrifty soul and took occasional boarders. Tom Williams was just out of college and was teaching for a while preparatory to entering the Institute of Technology. He was rather long and gawky and sparing of speech. Caroline looked him over and decided that he would never do at all for a soulmate.

She was a little piqued, however, that Tom paid so little attention to her. He was always polite to her, of course, but there was an aloofness about him which nettled her and she found herself putting forth all the little arts of which she was master to attract the admiration of "pa's boarder."

And she succeeded. Tom, in fact, soon found that he was in love with her, but he knew Caroline's reputation for inconstancy in love. Tom and Caroline, however, as they came to know each other better, became very good friends. About this time there arrived in the village a young man who seemed to Caroline to be all that she had dreamed of, all that she had been searching for. He was said to be the agent of a big New York firm that intended establishing a summer resort on the shore three miles away. Caroline bore down on the fascinating stranger like a beautiful yacht under full sail and threw out her grappling irons. The young man's name, as he gave it out, was Percival Sommers; which name added just the right touch as a finisher to his perfections.

Soon after Percival's arrival Tom and he met in the village street. Both stopped and stared at each other, saying simultaneously: "You here?"

Percival seemed very much disconcerted at the meeting and said: "You won't give an old college mate away, will you, Tom? I am down here lying perdu for a while. One of my little escapades. Nothing very bad; but thought it best to keep out of sight for a while."

"I will not give you away, Ben," replied Tom. "If you behave yourself. But the very first time I see you up to any of your old dodges, or hear of your being, I will denounce you." And he passed on with a scowl on his face.

Ben Ringwood's career at college had been disreputable, and his career after leaving college had been more so. Tom knew all about him. Pretty soon Tom saw that Caroline had become enamored of Ben Ringwood, alias Percival Sommers.

If he told Caroline what he knew about the man she would simply laugh at him and attribute it to jealousy. He resolved to go to Ben and tell him to leave town. "Sure, I'll leave town," said Ben. "I've had all I want of this hole. And, just to show you that I'm still in the ring, I might add that, if I wanted to, I could take along with me that pretty daughter of your landlord, old Pendergast." And he handed Tom a letter in which the foolish girl had offered to elope with her Percival, making an appointment for that very night in a certain woodland glade. "Be out of this town tomorrow morning," said Tom, and went home.

That night, when Caroline came to the rendezvous, it was not Percival but Tom she found waiting for her. She gave a little scream when she saw him. Tom told her all that he knew about Ben Ringwood and of what had taken place between them that day.

"You are just as horrid as you can be, both of you," sobbed Caroline. "I'll never speak to either of you again," and ran back to the house.

The next morning Ben Ringwood, alias Percival Sommers, was arrested by officers from New York charged with embezzlement. There were other charges—bigamy and a few little things like that. Two days later Caroline, very pale and serious, came to Tom and said: "Tom, I can never thank you enough for saving me from the results of my folly."

"Caroline," said Tom, "do you think you could—er—like me a little?"

She gazed at him silently for a while and then said: "Tom, you are one of the few young men whom I have met that I did not fall in love with at first sight. What I feel for you has been of a steady growth and, therefore, I think it must be the real thing."

"And I," he replied, "have loved you since first I saw you."

"Well," said she with a laugh, "so there is such a thing as love at first sight, after all. You have proved my theory, Tom; take me if you will." And then he kissed her.

Incurable, Too.

Little Edith was very fond of hearing her father play the guitar, but one evening he placed a table knife across the strings and it sounded somewhat like a ukulele. Edith listened for a moment and then said: "Papa, what makes the music sound so sick?"

Sick Poultry Can Be Cured Any Season of the Year.

Circleville, O., R. F. D. 6, September 29, 1924.

Mrs. Edward H. Wardell, winner of Grand Sweep Stakes for best dozen eggs in show in Ohio State university, held February, 1924, says:

Mr. F. L. Fickardt, Dear Sir:—

I am only too glad to recommend Fickardt's Roup and Cholera Drops to any one interested in poultry, as the best preventative for contagious diseases I know of, on the market today. About three years ago cholera broke out in my flock of young chickens, which were then about six weeks old, and weighing about 1½ pounds. There were 175 birds in this flock. As soon as I discovered they were sick I began treating them according to instructions of a specialist. I only lost eleven out of 175, and checked the disease in about three days. At that time Fickardt's Roup and Cholera Drops was recommended to me as a wonderful medicine to be used as a preventive of contagious diseases. At that time I began using the Drops and have not had an epidemic since, altho I lose one or two now and then from common causes such as apoplexy, egg-bound, etc. I begin giving it to the chicks when they are quite young and from that time on they are never without it. At the present time I am shipping two cases of eggs a week and have been for the last six months. from my flock of 180 hens and I attribute this high egg production to the healthy condition of my flock. I always grade and candle my eggs and I have attained such a degree of perfection that I have less than three per cent of my eggs that do not run over the specified weight of 24 ounces to the dozen. Sincerely,

Mrs. Edward H. Wardell.

Fickardt's Roup and Cholera Drops Is a remedy for Roup, Colds, sneezing, Canker, Limber neck, Chickenpox, White Diarrhoea, Indigestion and bowel complaints. Price 50 cents.

Potato a Misleading Plant.

Consider the potato—spud for short; remark the useful and undemonstrative potato. As a plant, it is refreshingly green, energetic, somewhat inclined to curiosity, and vigorous at all times. Also, it is deceptive—as most of my friends who make a living by living in the country and commuting into town know full well, writes S. Morgan Powell in the Montreal Star. The most green top will, when heaved out of the earth, bring forth the most diminutive group of tubers, shriveled and worn. Au contraire, a stunted top, with a hue closely resembling a dried olive, will, upon being given a swift and hefty tug, produce such an array of stout and gradely murrhies as would make the mouth of a Belfast waiter quiver with passionate anticipation. Assuredly, the potato, as a root, is a most misleading plant. (Videlicet any amateur gardener.)

PARANA IS MOST ECCENTRIC RIVER

Tears Down Islands and Rears New Ones.

Washington.—Canada has a Kicking Horse river; Argentina has the Parana which performs that way, and just now is indulging in its perennial trick of tearing down islands and rearing up new ones.

A trip up this beautiful, eccentric stream is described by William R. Barbour in the following communication to the National Geographic society:

"We left Buenos Aires one cool, showery morning in December (early summer) on the side-wheel, 12-foot draft steamer Bena, and after being out of sight of land for hours, in a turbid, muddy sea, reached the confluence of the Uruguay and Parana rivers and turned northwest up the latter. The stream was miles wide, the color of coffee with cream, and broken by numberless marshy islands. The shores on the left were covered with plantations of poplar and willow.

Argentina's Second City.

"Next morning we made our first stop at Rosario, the second largest city of Argentina and a notable shipping point for grain and flaxseed. It is located on high clay bluffs west of the river along whose banks there lie huge grain warehouses and elevators which cut off our view of the city proper, with its 250,000 people, a large part of whom are Italians. The water beside the Rosario docks is deep enough for ocean freighters, and the city serves as port of outlet for a great agricultural section.

"About sunset imposing white stuccoed church towers came into sight ahead, and rounding a great bend we came to Parana, capital of the province of Entre Rios. It is a town of about 50,000 people, and exports large amounts of hides and cereals; its wharves are equipped with traveling cranes and backed by solidly built concrete warehouses.

"When day came the character of the country had changed. On each side stretched endless reaches of low, partially inundated country, densely wooded with strange tropical trees, interspersed with an occasional 'feather-duster' palm. The wide flood was dotted with islands, large and small, among which the buoyed channel meandered. Camalotes, which the Spanish dictionary defines as 'river plants in South America resembling a floating island,' began to drift by. Usually only a few would be joined together, but occasionally our boat would swing abruptly aside to avoid patches which had collected about some floating uprooted tree to form islands 50 feet across.

Stranded 'Islands' a Menace.

"These camalotes make their appearance in times of high water, being carried out into the current from the adjacent swamps. They always harbor many snakes. In 1905 a great flood brought so many of these 'islands' down the river that they stranded on the banks near Buenos Aires and thus constituted a public menace. Thousands of snakes, with an occasional wild boar or other animal which had become marooned, went ashore into the thickets between Palermo park and the river, and a large force of policemen armed with machetes had to be put to work killing them.

"By the third morning the territory of the Chaco lay to the west of us, its largely unexplored swamps and jungles covering an area of at least 200,000 square miles. In northern Argentina, western Paraguay, and southwestern Bolivia. Were it not the home of the quebracho, that tree which is so important a source of tannin, the region would be even less known than it is.

"In the forenoon we reached Corrientes, capital of the province of the same name. It is a typically Spanish-looking, sleepy old place, with its one-story whitewashed brick homes showing only blank walls to the narrow, filthy, roughly cobbled streets.

"Immediately above the city the river is very wide, but, thanks to high water, we were able to stay close to the west shore, behind a string of islands. Fresh-water gulls, small cranes, and large, dull-blue kingfishers vied for interest with the alligators basking on the sunny banks.

Boy Boasts of Four Great Grandmothers

Manti, Utah.—Lee R. Thompson, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Thompson of this city, is believed to be the only boy in Utah and probably in the entire country who can boast the possession of four great-grandmothers, all in excellent health. The four great-grandmothers are: Mrs. Kezzie Peacock of Manti, seventy-three; Mrs. Jennie Freckleton of Eureka, eighty-four; Mrs. Nehemia Edwards of Sterling, seventy-eight; and Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson of Sterling, sixty-nine. Mrs. Freckleton and Mrs. Edwards are the grandmothers of Mrs. Ralph Thompson and Mrs. Kezzie Peacock and Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson are the grandmothers of Mr. Thompson.

TEMPERANCE WOMEN MEET

Williamsport Union Discussed the Bible in the Public Schools.

Opinions of Prominent Americans Were Read—Miss Flora Dunlap Gave Talk on Prohibition Law—Meeting at Home of Mr. and Mrs. John Stewart.

The monthly meeting of the Williamsport Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held at the pretty home of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Stewart, in Williamsport, Thursday afternoon, November 20. The meeting was opened by singing the stirring song entitled, "The Jubilee is Coming." The president, Mrs. Ella Hornbeck, presided. Mrs. George Hamman read the scripture lesson from the 12th chapter of Romans. Mrs. Dunlap led the devotions which was following by reading of the minutes of the previous meeting by Mrs. Cedelia Morgan. Mrs. Hamman had charge of the program and also read a highly interesting historical paper entitled "The Bible in the Public Schools" from which we quote the following: Our public school system had its beginning about one hundred and twenty-five years before the signing of the Declaration of Independence. It was about the year, 1850, that the first systematic movement against the Bible in the schools began, notwithstanding the activity of opponents to the reading of the Bible in the public schools the custom is supported by law or public opinion in 35 states and is observed in at least three-fourths of the schools of this country. In not a single state is the Bible excluded from the public schools by a specific declaration in either the constitution or the statute law. In every instance its exclusion is based on the clauses prohibiting sectarian instruction and the levying of taxes to support places of worship. The courts in a number of states declare that the reading of the Bible does not make the school house a house of worship. If it does it makes penitentiaries house of worship. The offering of prayer in congress makes the Capitol building a house of worship. It is safe to say that no constitution or law has yet been framed and adopted with the intent of excluding the Bible from our public schools.

A number of the members read sketches from prominent persons who in the past gave their opinion regarding the reading of the Bible in the public schools. Thomas Jefferson said: "The studious perusal of the sacred volume will make better citizens." John Quincy Adams said: "So great is my veneration for the Bible that the earlier children begin to read it the more confident will be my hopes that they would prove useful citizens of their country and respectable members of society." Abraham Lincoln said: "In regard to this Great Book, I have only to say that it is the best gift which God has given to men." Ulysses S. Grant said: "Hold fast to the Bible as the sheet anchor of your liberties; write its precepts on your hearts and practice them in your lives. To the influence of the book we are indebted for the progress made in civilization and to this we must look as our guide in the future." Theodore Roosevelt said "I doubt if there is any lesson more essential to teach in an industrial democracy like ours than the lesson that any failure to train the average citizen to a belief in the things of the spirit, no less than the things of the body must in the long run entail misfortune, shortcomings and possible disaster upon the nation itself.

Stanley Hall, president of Clark university, one of the nation's foremost school men has expressed his conviction that there should be religious instructions in American schools. Nicholas Murray Butler, the president of Columbia university said at the National Education association. I contend that we are not only impoverishing life and literature by the neglect of the English Bible, but that we have already impoverished life and literature. Knowledge of the English Bible is passing out of the life of the rising generation and with this knowledge of the Bible there is fast disappearing any acquaintance with the religious element which has shaped our civilization from the beginning. The National Educational association assembled in convention at Minneapolis Minnesota, unanimously adopted a resolution in favor of the reading and study of the English Bible in the public schools. The national and state W. C. T. U. have a department which aims to inculcate respect for religion and for God into the hearts and minds of the boys and girls of our nation while they are at an impressionable age.

Miss Flora Dunlap gave a talk on the enforcement of our prohibition law and gave very convincing reasons why she believed that alcoholic drinking was reduced to a very small amount in the middle and western states.

The program closed with the W. C. T. U. benediction followed by a delightful period during which the hostess and her assistants served delicious refreshments.

Among the visitors were Miss Flora Dunlap, of Des Moines, Iowa, and Mrs. S. W. Dunlap, of Circleville.

Butler's Statement.

Boston, Nov. 26.—In a statement here William M. Butler, recently appointed senator, said that the election meant the end of bloc legislation, that it had demonstrated the impossibility of effecting a labor party in American politics, and that it had proved the futility of attempting to bring conservative and radical votes to the same party by putting a conservative and a radical on the same ticket.

Inquiry Ordered.

Washington, Nov. 26.—An inquiry has been ordered by the treasury into charges that coast guard men fired without warrant upon a fishing boat owned by M. M. Belding of New York as it was cruising off the Florida coast. Replying to a telegram sent by Mr. Belding to the president, officials explained to him that coast guard headquarters was attempting to run down his charges.

Slain by Bandits.

New York, Nov. 26.—Dr. Melville Hayes, a physician, was shot and killed in a pistol battle with three bandits, who held up a drug store here. The holdup men escaped.

Airplanes used by the around-the-world flyers were turned over to army authorities at San Diego, Cal., and will no longer be used for aviation.

William Eugene Lewis, editor and general manager of the New York Morning Telegraph since 1903, is dead. He was born in Cleveland. Indictments charging the American Cotton exchange and seven of its officers and directors with bucketing orders of its customers were dismissed at New York.

UNDERWENT OPERATION.
